

CALL FOR PAPERS

www.isvlsi.org

July 3-5, 2017
Bochum, Germany

ISVLSI 2017 Ph.D Forum

ISVLSI 2017 will host a Ph.D. forum, providing opportunity for Ph.D. students to present their thesis work to a broad audience in the VLSI community from both industry and academia. The Ph.D. forum may also help students to establish contacts for entering the job market. On the other side, representatives from industry and academia get a glance of state-of-the-art in system design and design automation.

Eligibility

Students who have finished their Ph.D. dissertation/thesis within the last 12 months or students who will finish their thesis work in less than one year.

Selection

Approximately 10 students will be selected for oral presentation at ISVLSI 2017 and will also have their papers included in the proceedings.

Benefit to the selected students

- 4-page publication in the ISVLSI 2017 proceedings (indexed in IEEE eXplore).
- 10 minutes oral presentation.
- Presentation in poster session for Ph.D. Forum.
- 50% discount on the registration fee for the top 5 PhD works.
- Networking with presenters from industry and academia.
- Opportunity to publicize work, distribute flyers summarizing PhD work.
- Best PhD poster award will be presented during conference banquet. Award based on presentation and poster quality.

Author Information

- Please submit a paper in IEEE conference format describing problem addressed in the thesis, novelty of the solution, observations and analysis. Focus should be on the scientific challenges and solutions. IEEE template can be found at this link.
- Page limit: 4. Please do not exceed the page limit.
- Authors limit: 2 (PhD candidate and advisor). Please do not exceed the author limit.
- The submission should not include author information to enable blind review.
- A single pdf file should be submitted using the following link "Paper Submission".

Important Dates:

Paper Submission Deadline: February 24th, 2017

Acceptance Notification: April 15th, 2017

Submission of Final Version: May 12th, 2017

For inquiry please contact: The "Ph.D. Forum Chair" Monica Pereira from the Organizing Committee list.